NATIONAL REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

FOR PRESIDENT,
JAMES G. BLAINE, OF MAINE.
FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
JOHN A. LOGAN, OF ILLINOIS.

THE recent disclosures affecting the private life of Grover Cleveland have placed the highly moral Independent in a most embarrassing position. They abandoned Republican principles because they chose to consider Mr. Blaine's character to be somewhat smirched, and at once proclaimed that Governor Cleveland was their ideal of all that was pure and noble.

It seems to be conclusively shown that Grover Cleveland is neither pure nor noble; that on the contrary, his associates have been low and his behavior scandalous; that to his utter unfitness for the exalted position of President of the United States by reason of his youth and inexperience, must be added his utter unfitness for any exalted position whatever, by reason of his lack of personal honor.

The death of Mr. William P. Lyon on Sunday last removes from our community a gentleman who, during a residence of more than fifteen years, has felt and exhibited an active interest in every enterprise with which our people have been associated. From the time he came to Bloomfield his home has been ready to open its doors to using his voice and pen and influence in the promotion and advancement of the prosperity of the town. It was he who first started a local paper, and who, by his efforts, first demonstrated the advantages which would result from the publication of such a journal. It was unfortunate for him as well as for the public that the pecuniary returns from that venture were not sufficient to warrant its continuance. Although Mr. Lyon had reached an age at which most men seek to withdraw from active pursuits, his unusual strength and vigor enabled him to pursue his work to the end, and his death, which was sudden and quite unexpected, will be felt in this community as that of many a younger man would not have been felt. The editors of this paper are indebted to him for many thoughtful suggestions, and his frequent contributions will be missed by them with a regret which we feel sure our readers will also share.

Politics in Bloomfield.

On Monday evening the Republicans of Essex County held a rousing rally at Newark, which was addressed by Senator Joseph R. Hawley, of Connecticut, and by ex-Governor Oglesby, of Illinois. The Grand Opera House was crowded, and the enthusiasm was beyond control.

A considerable number of Bloomfield gentlemen were present, and they speak of the meeting as being one of the most satisfactory which they ever attended.

Thus far little or no campaign work has been done in Bloomfield. A Republican club has been formed and committees have been appointed, and we have no doubt that these committees are doing and will do the work assigned to them. But if any effort is to be made this fall to show what the Republicans of Bloomfield can do for Blaine and Logan it must be done by the voters.

The membership of the Republican club is supposed to include all the Republican voters in the township, but in point of fact, the roll has been signed by very few of them. In order to secure the highest efficiency this roll should be extended, and we suggest that every voter who desires the election of our candidates and the success of our party next November, send his name at once to Mr. M. W. Jones, the Secretary of the club, and authorize him to put their names upon the roll. In this way the Executive Committee will know where their men may rely upon, and the organization can be increased in numbers and in influence.

In witnessing the Republicans have organized a separate club, which has a large number of members and has erected a wigwag in which to hold meetings. Their energy and patriotism should serve to rouse a similar spirit at the Centre.

The Committee on Speakers and Public Meetings are promised the services of some of the most effective orators in the party as soon as the campaign has fairly opened, and it is time that greater efforts were made to give them a fitting reception.

The Bloomfield Library Association.

Upon the corner of Broad and Liberty streets stands a building, bearing upon its front in large letters the name above written. It belongs to a Library Association, which never bought a book, and is called Library Hall, although it has no room fit to hold a library. Born in trouble, cradled in poverty, disowned and disinherited, it stands a monument of folly, and perhaps to those who knew its inside history, a lighthouse of warning. Like the verdict of the corner's jury upon the baby found dead, its epitaph might be written, "It came to its death in the following manner, to wit, it was born dead."

Its story may be briefly told. A few gentlemen, representing the now defunct Euclidean Society, desiring to promote the welfare of the young men of the town, organized a reading-room, provided lecture courses for several seasons, and finally obtained the charter of the Bloomfield Library Association. Subscriptions were secured to the amount of $20,000 and upwards, and a Board of Managers elected, who proceeded to buy books. Oh! no; they had no money for books, although their charter required that ten per cent of the amount subscribed should be invested in books. They proceeded to build, not exactly a library-building, but a public hall, and in order that the subscribers might be permanently interested in it they placed upon it a mortgage of goodly proportions. And so we say, it was born dead. The minority protested without avail, they had not subscribed for a hall. Under threat of legal process they were compelled to pay; and so they paid. They paid under protest. They paid with the settled resolve never again to contribute a dollar toward redeeming a building which was conceived in error, built in defiance of reason and good taste, and worst of all, was never completed.

A national debt may be a national blessing, but friends will be few and distant to that church or public hall, which frequently passes the hat. In ten years an investment of $40,000 in lot and building has sunk to $12,000 or $15,000. The property may be bought cheap. Judicious improvements may make it a safe investment, and an ornament to the town. It ought to be improved. But the taint remains. The managers are growing under the weight of a self imposed burden. The public is sick. Shrewd business men think they see a good bargain. The minority secretly nurse their ill feeling. The public waits. Meanwhile, we have no hall that we dare to sit in of a winter night without a coat of furs, and the library must be delayed, until the affairs of the defunct Association can be satisfactorily settled.

Was ever situation more perplexing? If only the majority would buy the hall, own and run it, and the minority buy the books and build the library, the conundrum would be solved. But no; both projects are at a standstill, and patience presents her claims.

We suggest a possible solution. Let some enterprising gentleman form a Public Hall Association, solicit subscriptions, and build a library. These who protested might then buy in Library Hall, and the town would rejoice in the success of the enterprise. But to be serious. There is money sufficient, easily to carry out both undertakings, so full of benefit for us all. One mistake should not be allowed to destroy the success of all benevolent enterprises for years to come.

Let the earnest men of the town act together, and with good management, success will come out of failure, and good feeling out of disappointment and loss.
